

Cam Valley Wildlife Group

Cam Valley Wildlife Group is an independent local wildlife group that has been actively involved in wildlife conservation and enjoyment for over 25 years. Our area is based on the catchments of the Cam and Wellow Brooks and it has interesting and diverse habitats and wildlife.

What do we do?

We run a range of recording and conservation projects, work with other groups and individuals, provide wildlife advice, and have a programme of events that members and non-members enjoy, including the popular weekly evening botany walks from April to September. There is an entry fee to talks to cover costs, but most of our events are free.

Do you want to join us?

Membership is only £5.00 per year, and for that you will get the benefit of knowing that you are helping to conserve the wonderful wildlife of our area. You will also receive a quarterly newsletter by post or email along with the Events and Botany Walks programmes, and we will send you additional news of interest by email. Members involved in our projects or setting up new ones are given support and the assurance of group insurance.
